

'The Alps – Skiing by Train' map now available as a shower curtain, duvet cover, clock, mug and other products.

2021 London Christmas lights map also now available.

Alpine mapping specialists, 2theAlps, are pleased to announce the launch of their 'Skiing by Train' map across a range of products via the Redbubble website, making the perfect gift for winter-sports enthusiasts. The map includes several hundred ski resorts and illustrates clearly how these can be reached by train with bus connections included for those not on the rail network. The seven Alpine countries of Austria, France, Germany, Italy, Liechtenstein, Slovenia and Switzerland are all represented, and the map can be used to plan safari-style trips across the mountain range.

Products include rucksacks, smart phone wallets, bath mats, water bottles and cushions. See www.2thealps.com/alps-map-gifts1.htm for more details.

We have also brought out an updated version of our London Christmas Lights Map after our research team hired some bikes and painstakingly cycled the streets of central London to check which displays had changed since last year and look out for any new arrivals. Our new top-12 list features our pick of the best including some old favourites and a few new entries. www.2thealps.com/london-christmas-lights-2021.htm

2theAlps is a cartographic company specialising in winter-sports maps with a particular focus on travel by train. Our two original maps, 'The Alps – Skiing by Train' and the 'Ski Resort Map of the Alps', are available from our website in various formats.
